Once upon a time, there was
a tortoise and a hare.
The hare liked to brag about how fast he could run.

“Nobody can beat me!”

Hare said.

“Let’s race and find out,”

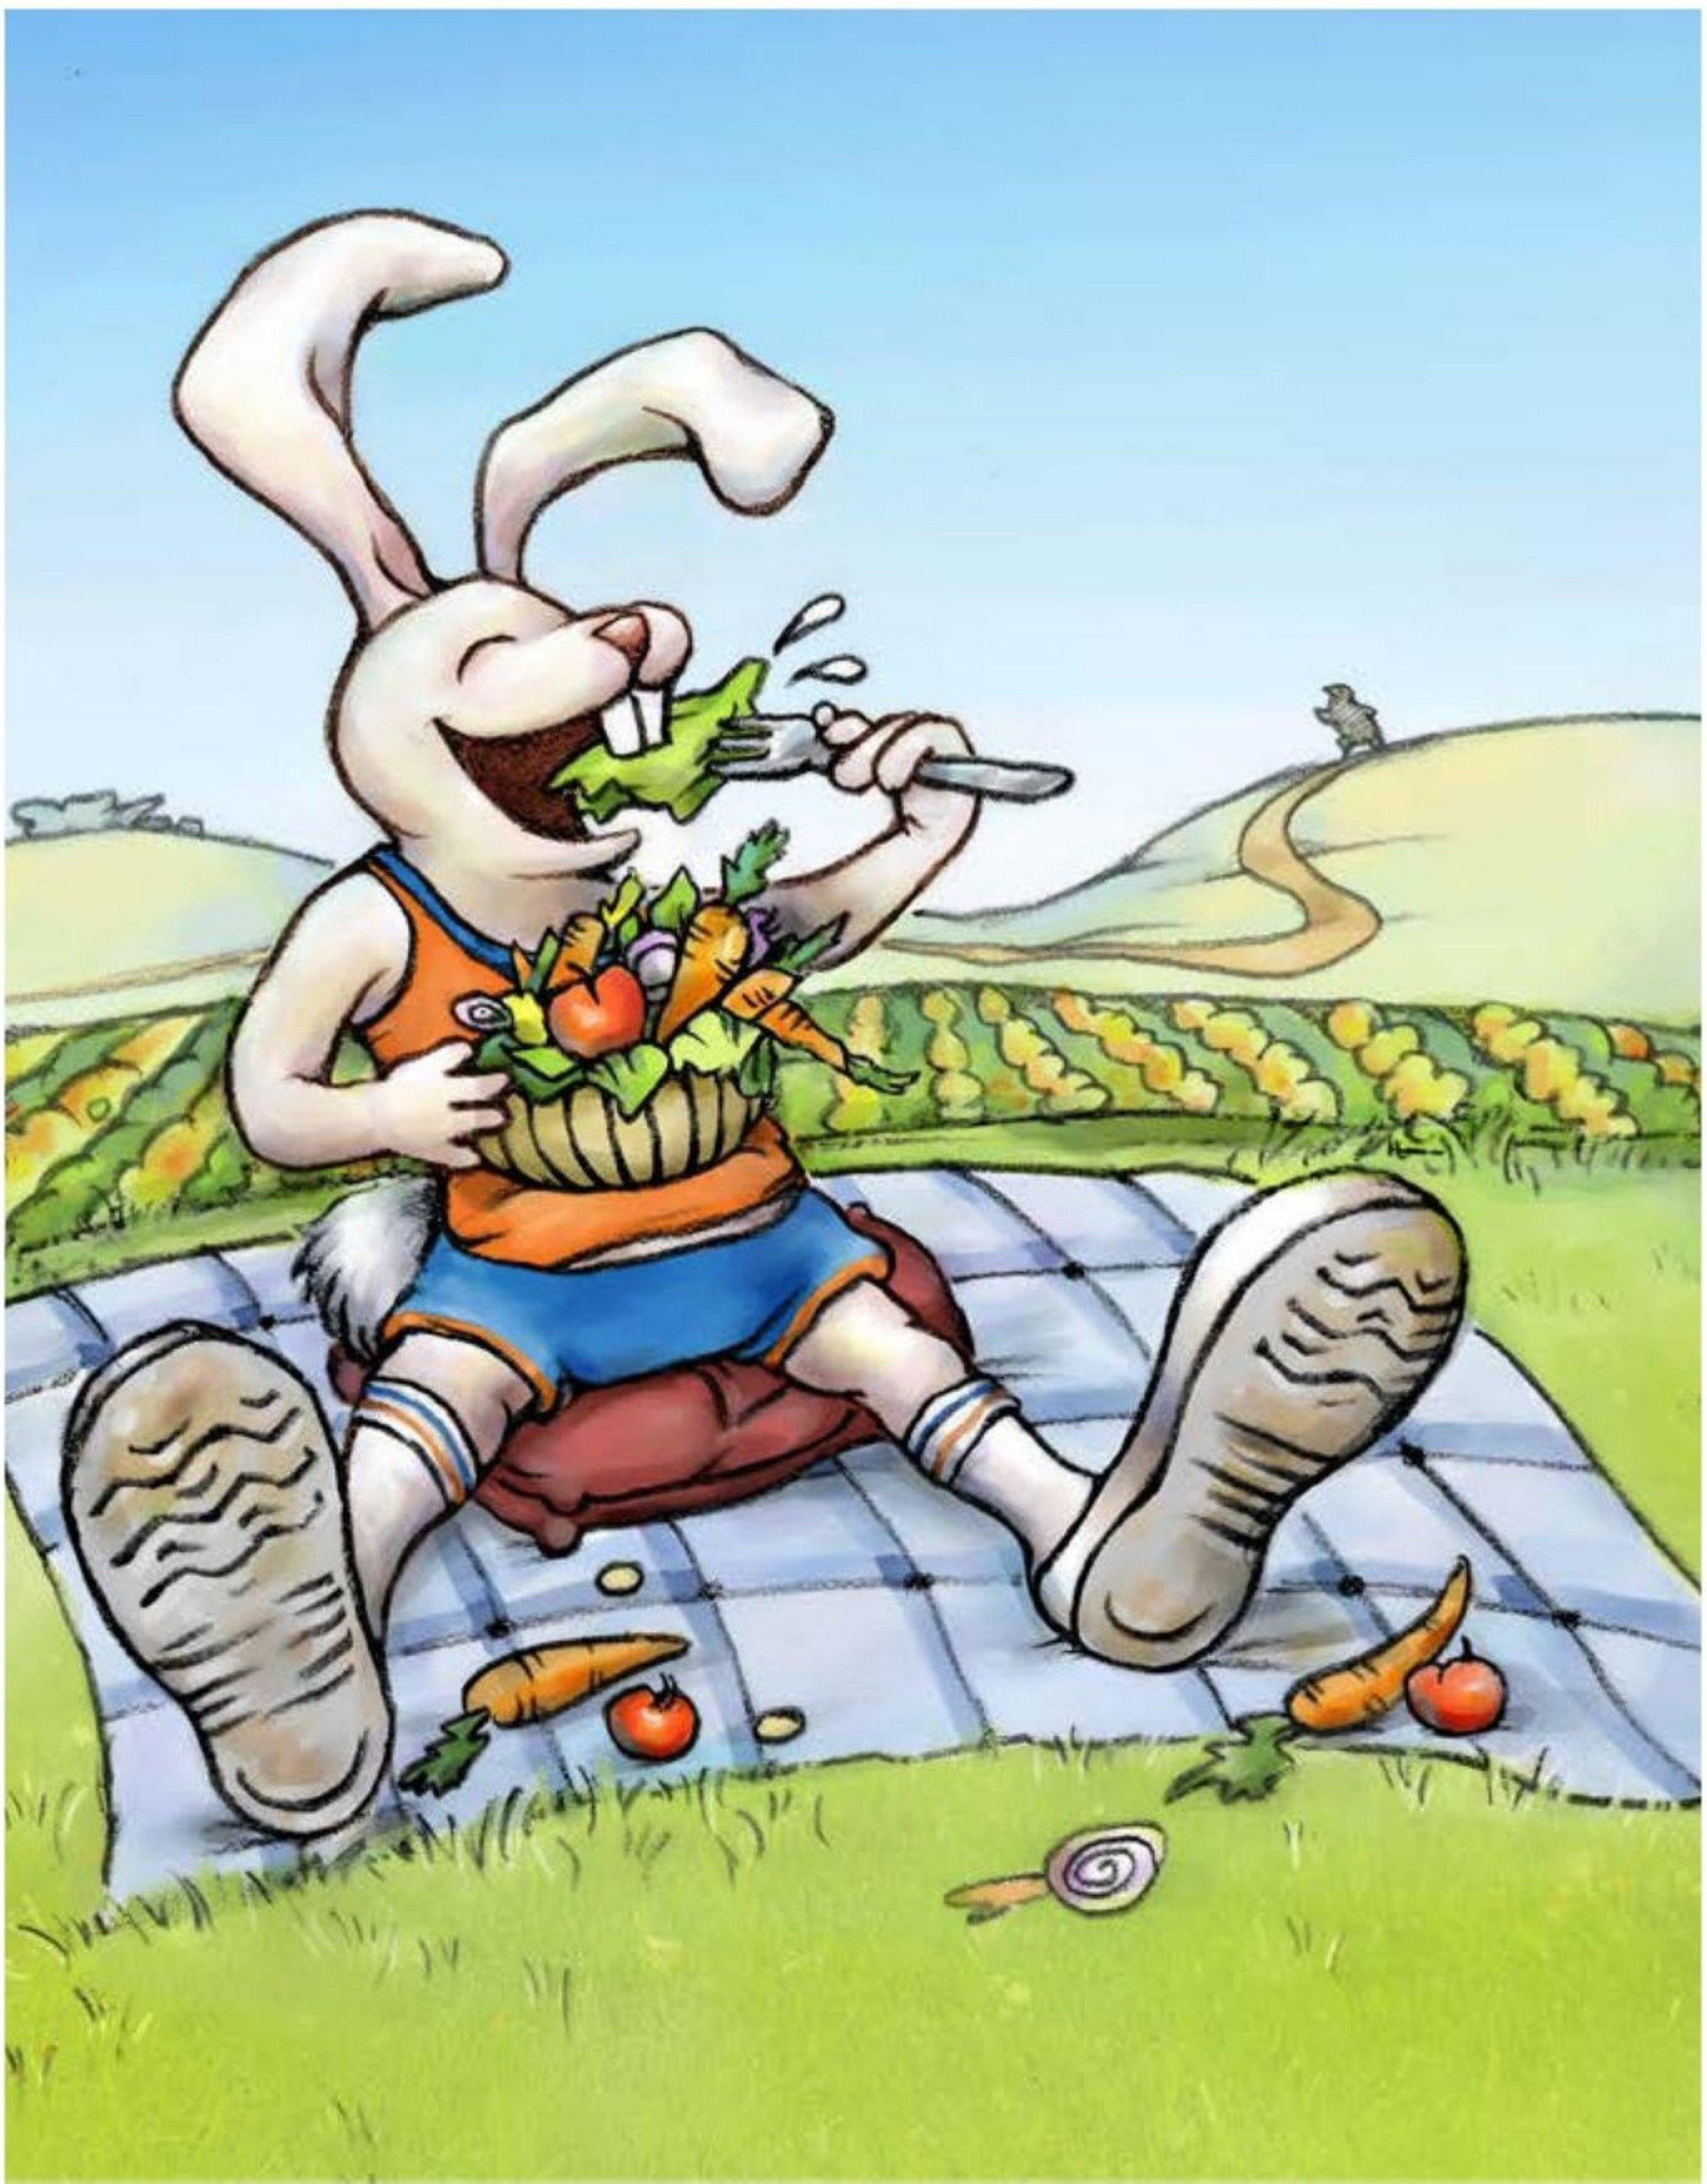

Tortoise said.

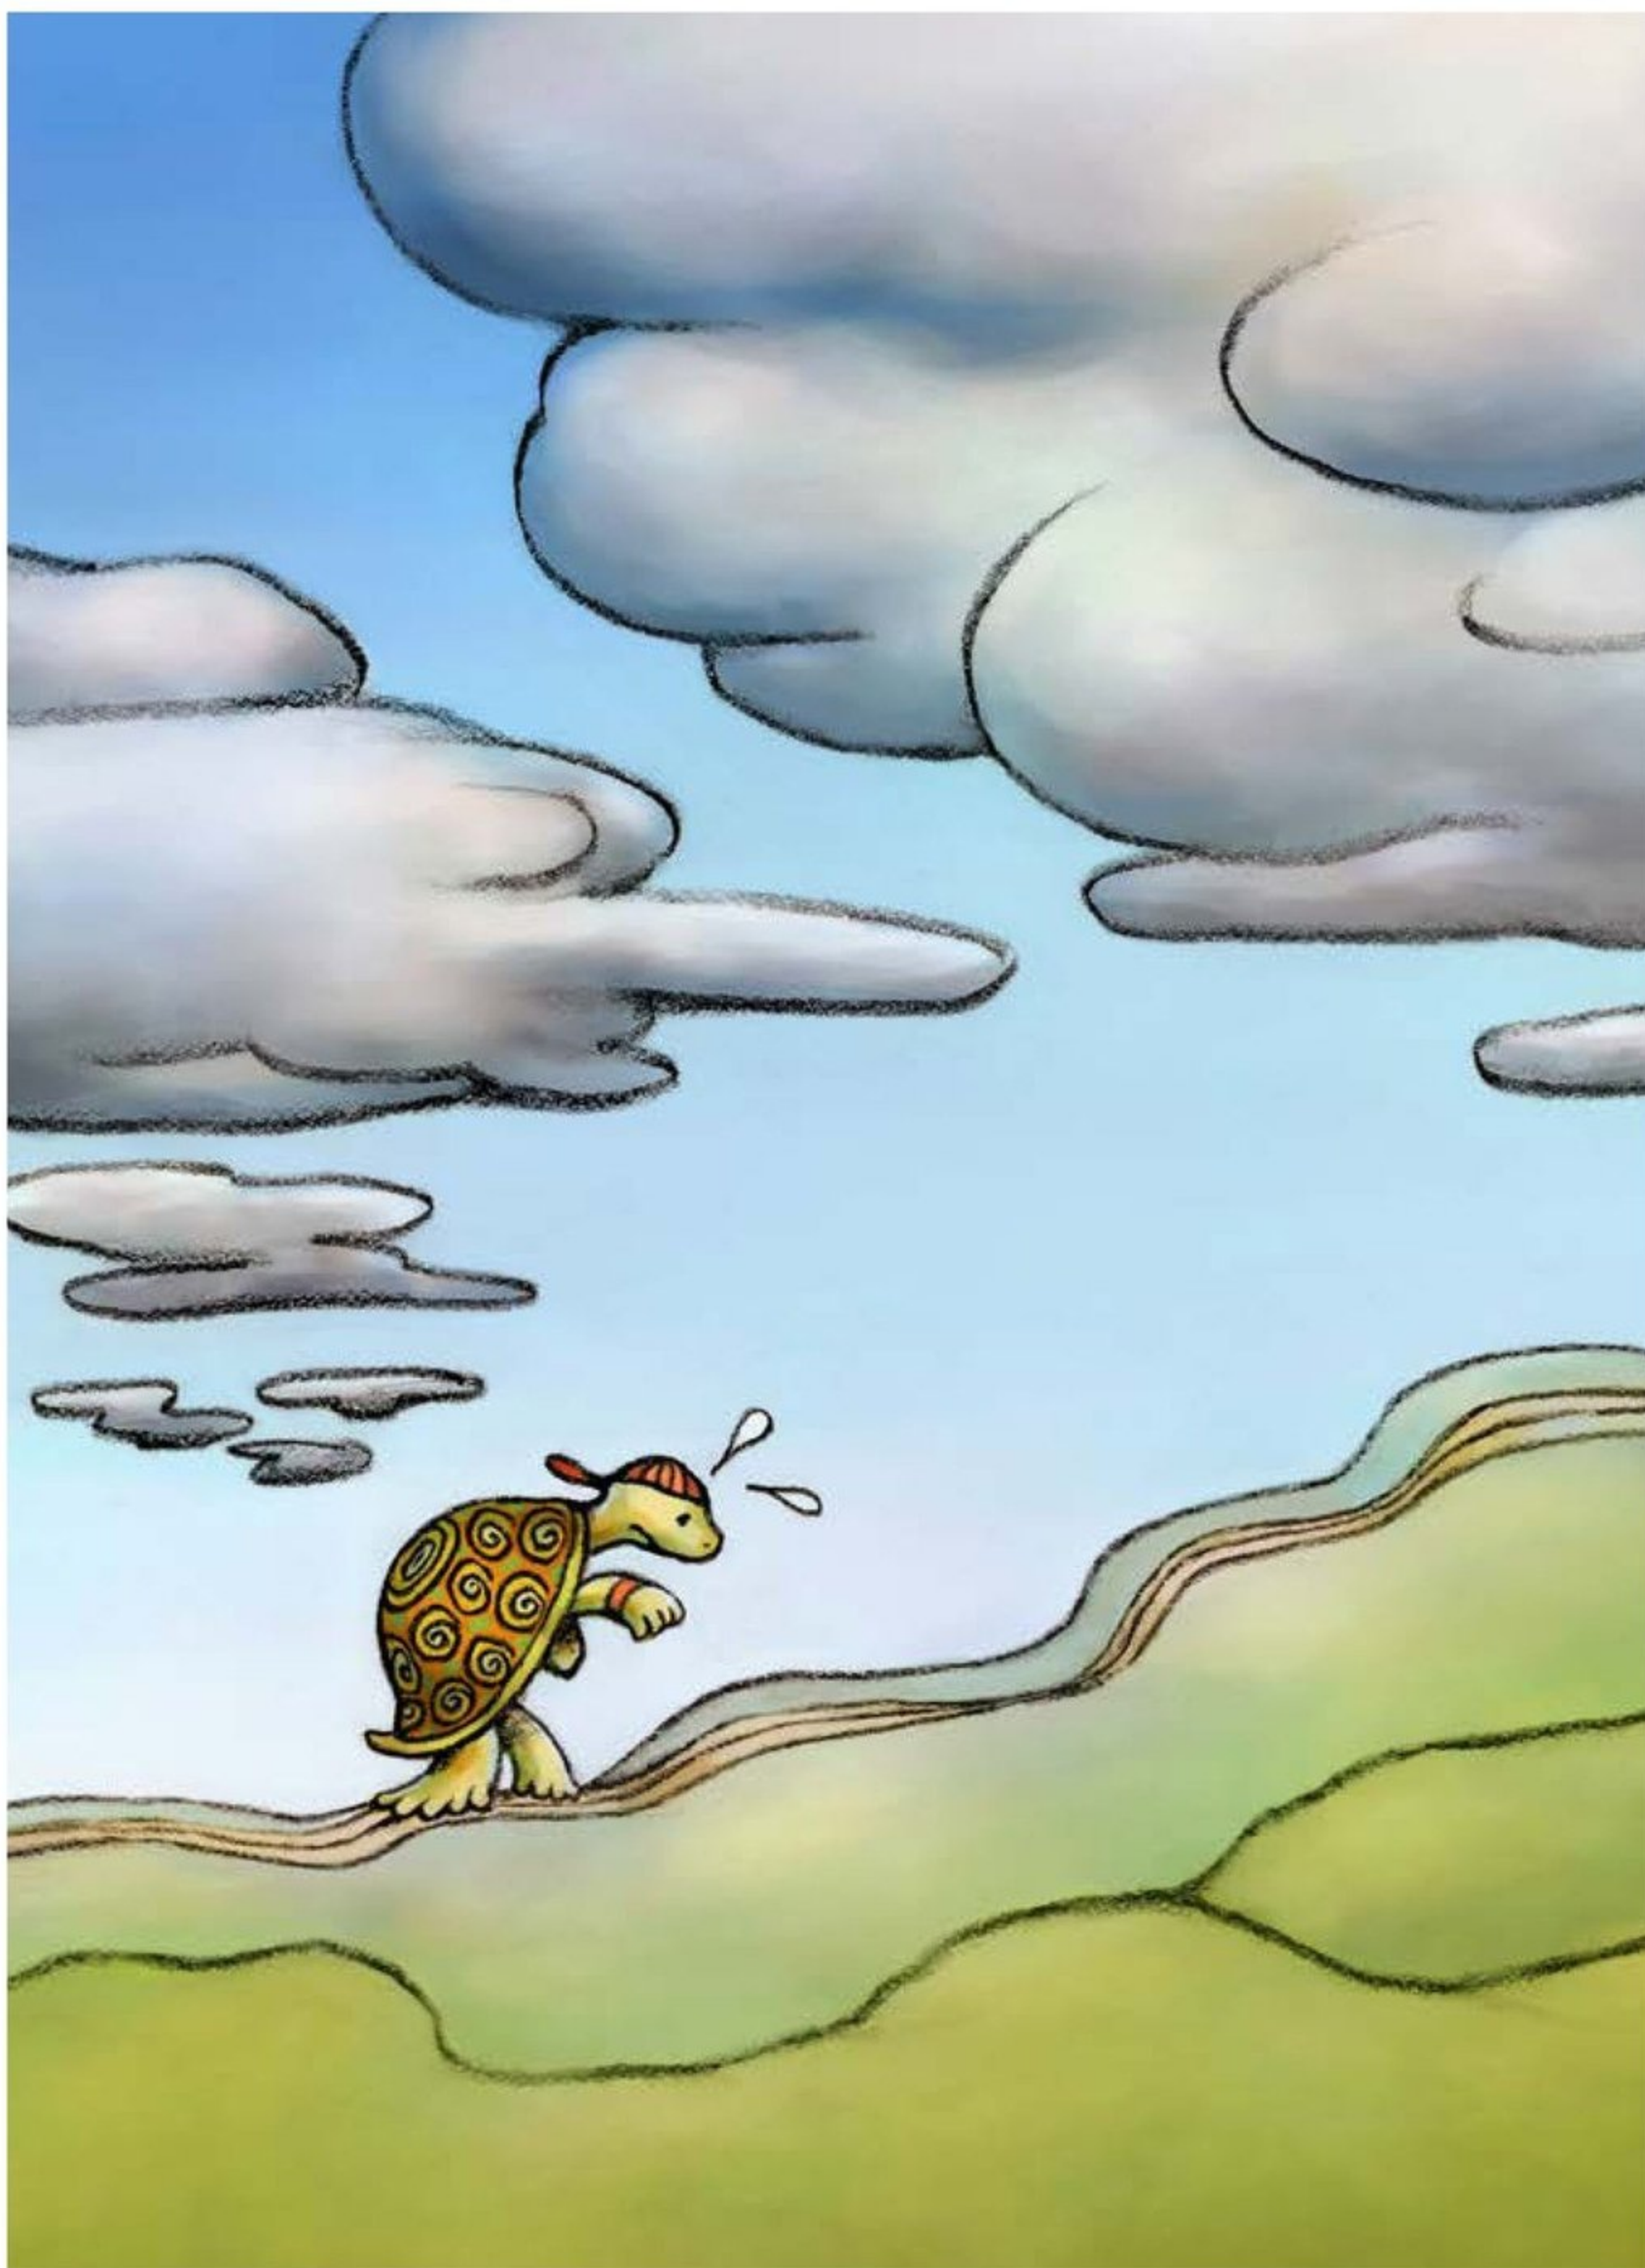

Hare wanted to win.
He hopped away and

Tortoise took one step
after another.

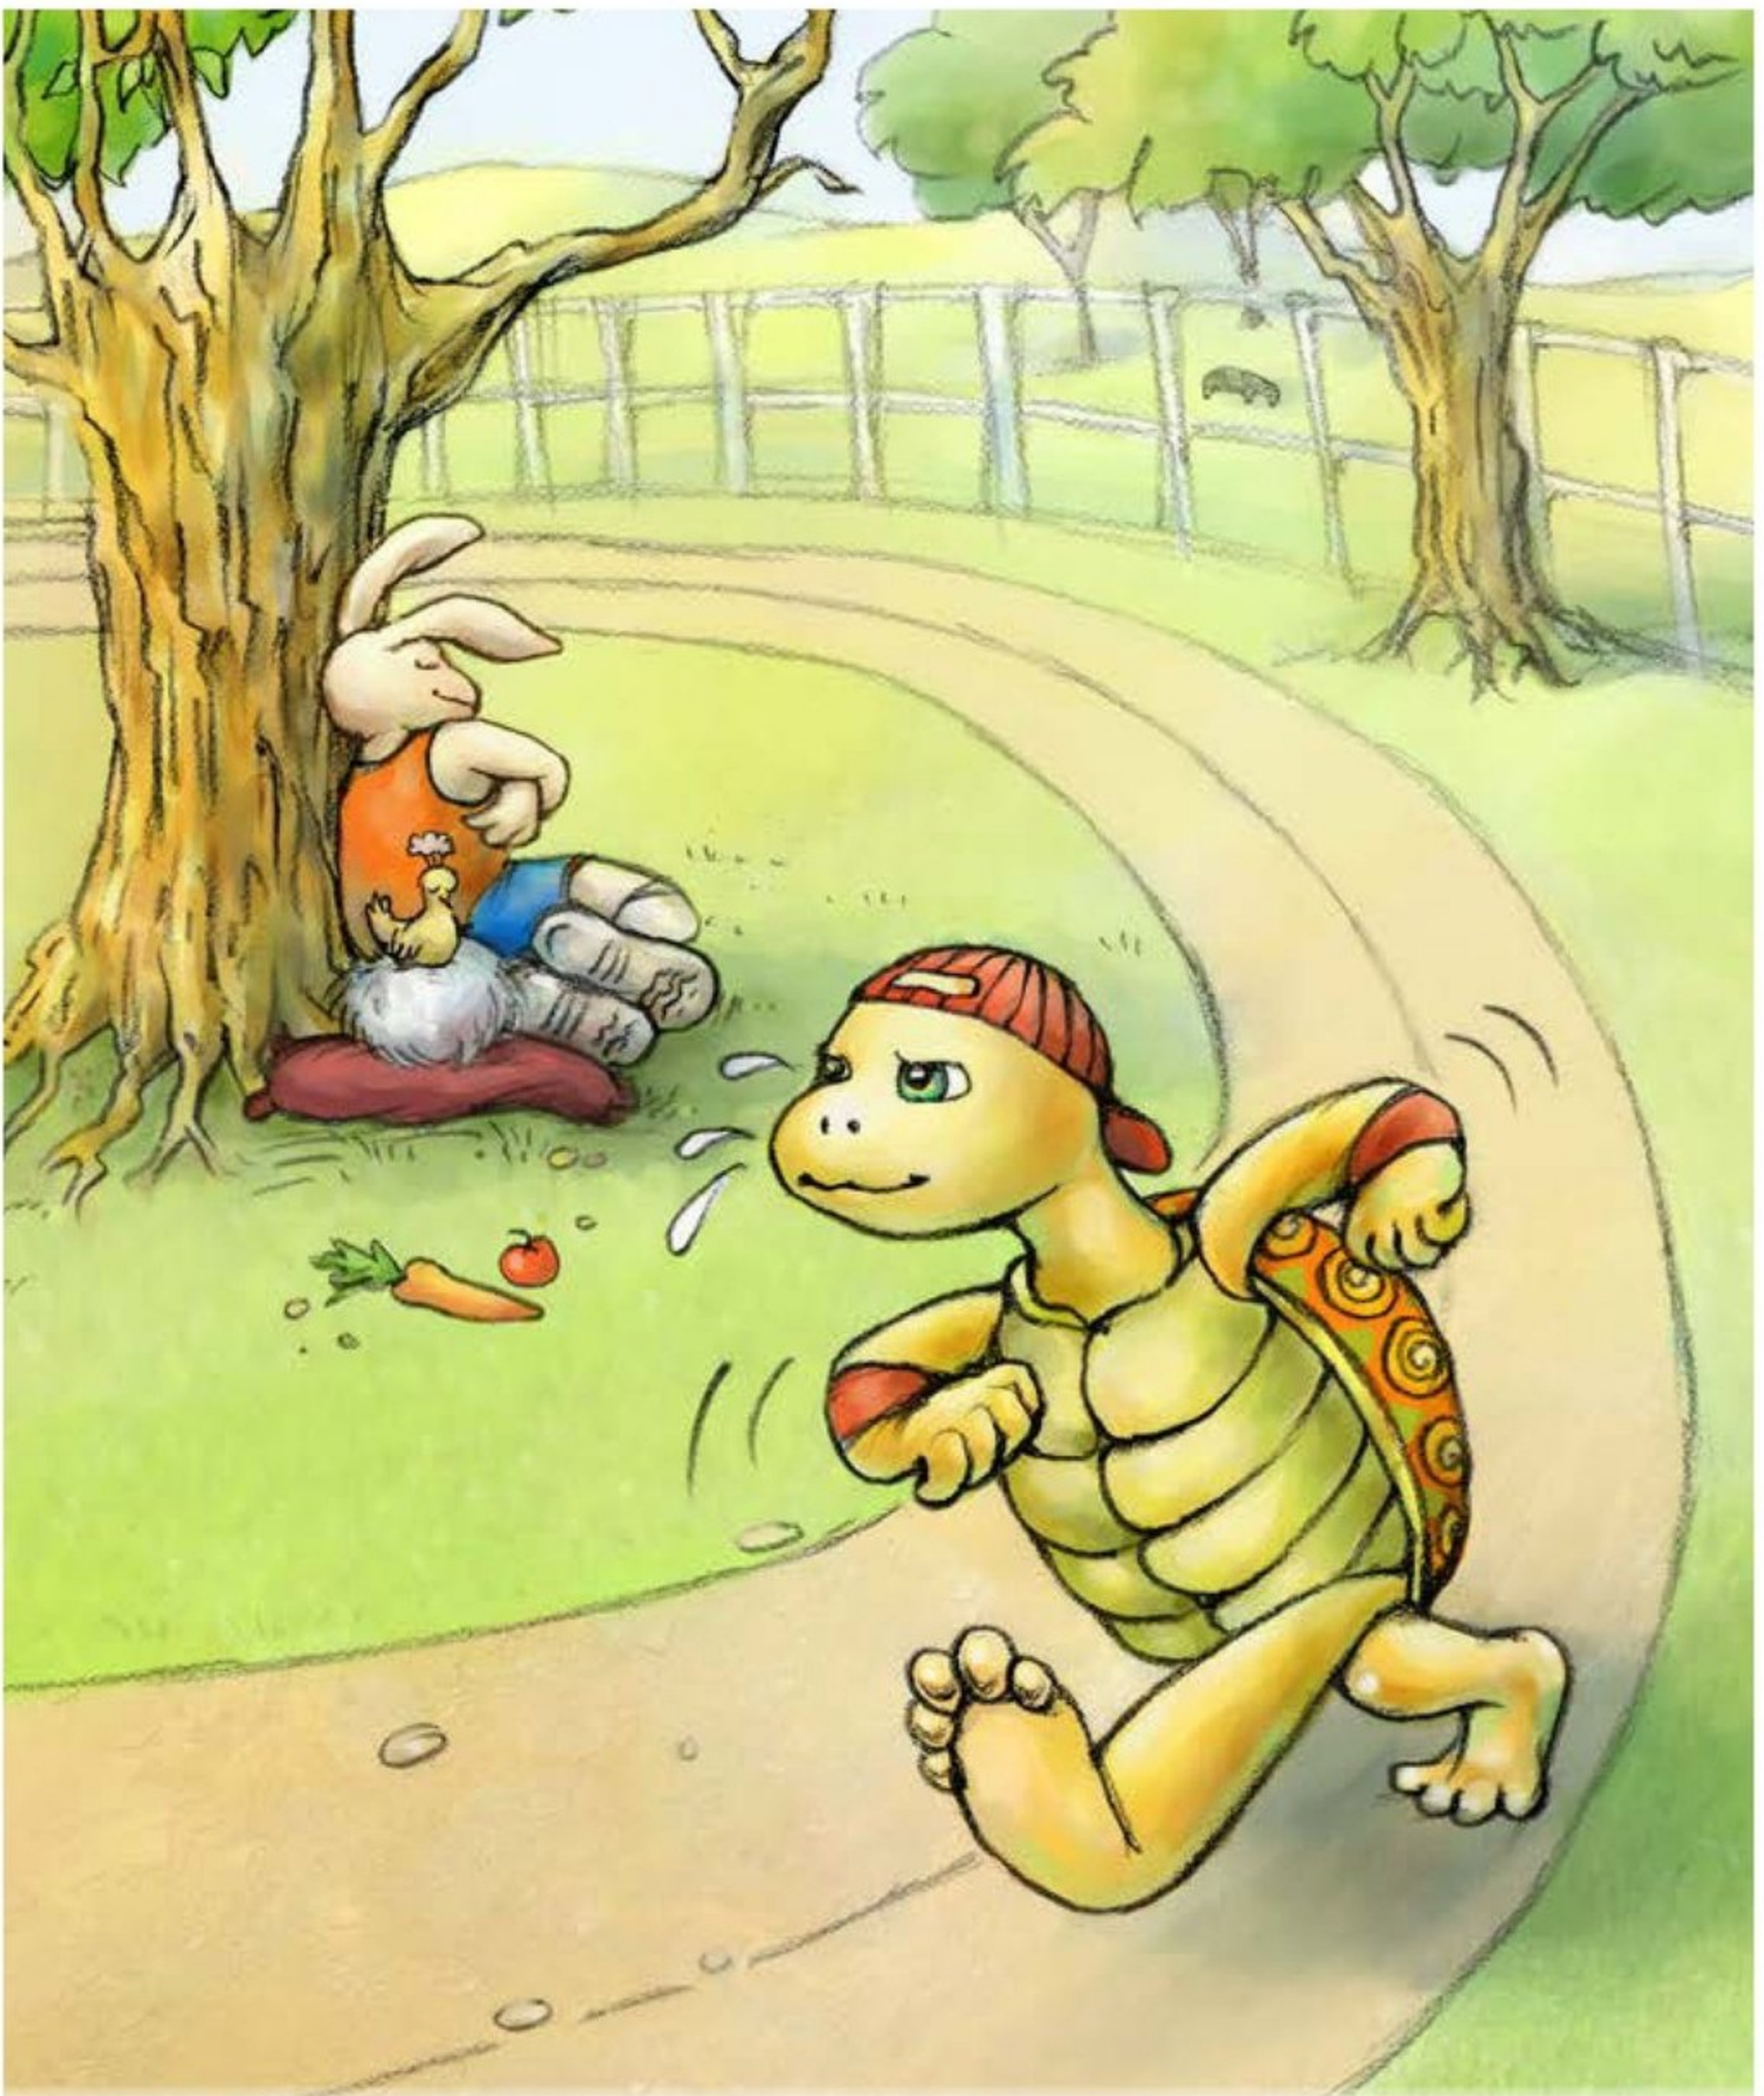

Hare wanted a snack.
He hopped to a field and ate some plants.

Tortoise took one step
after another.

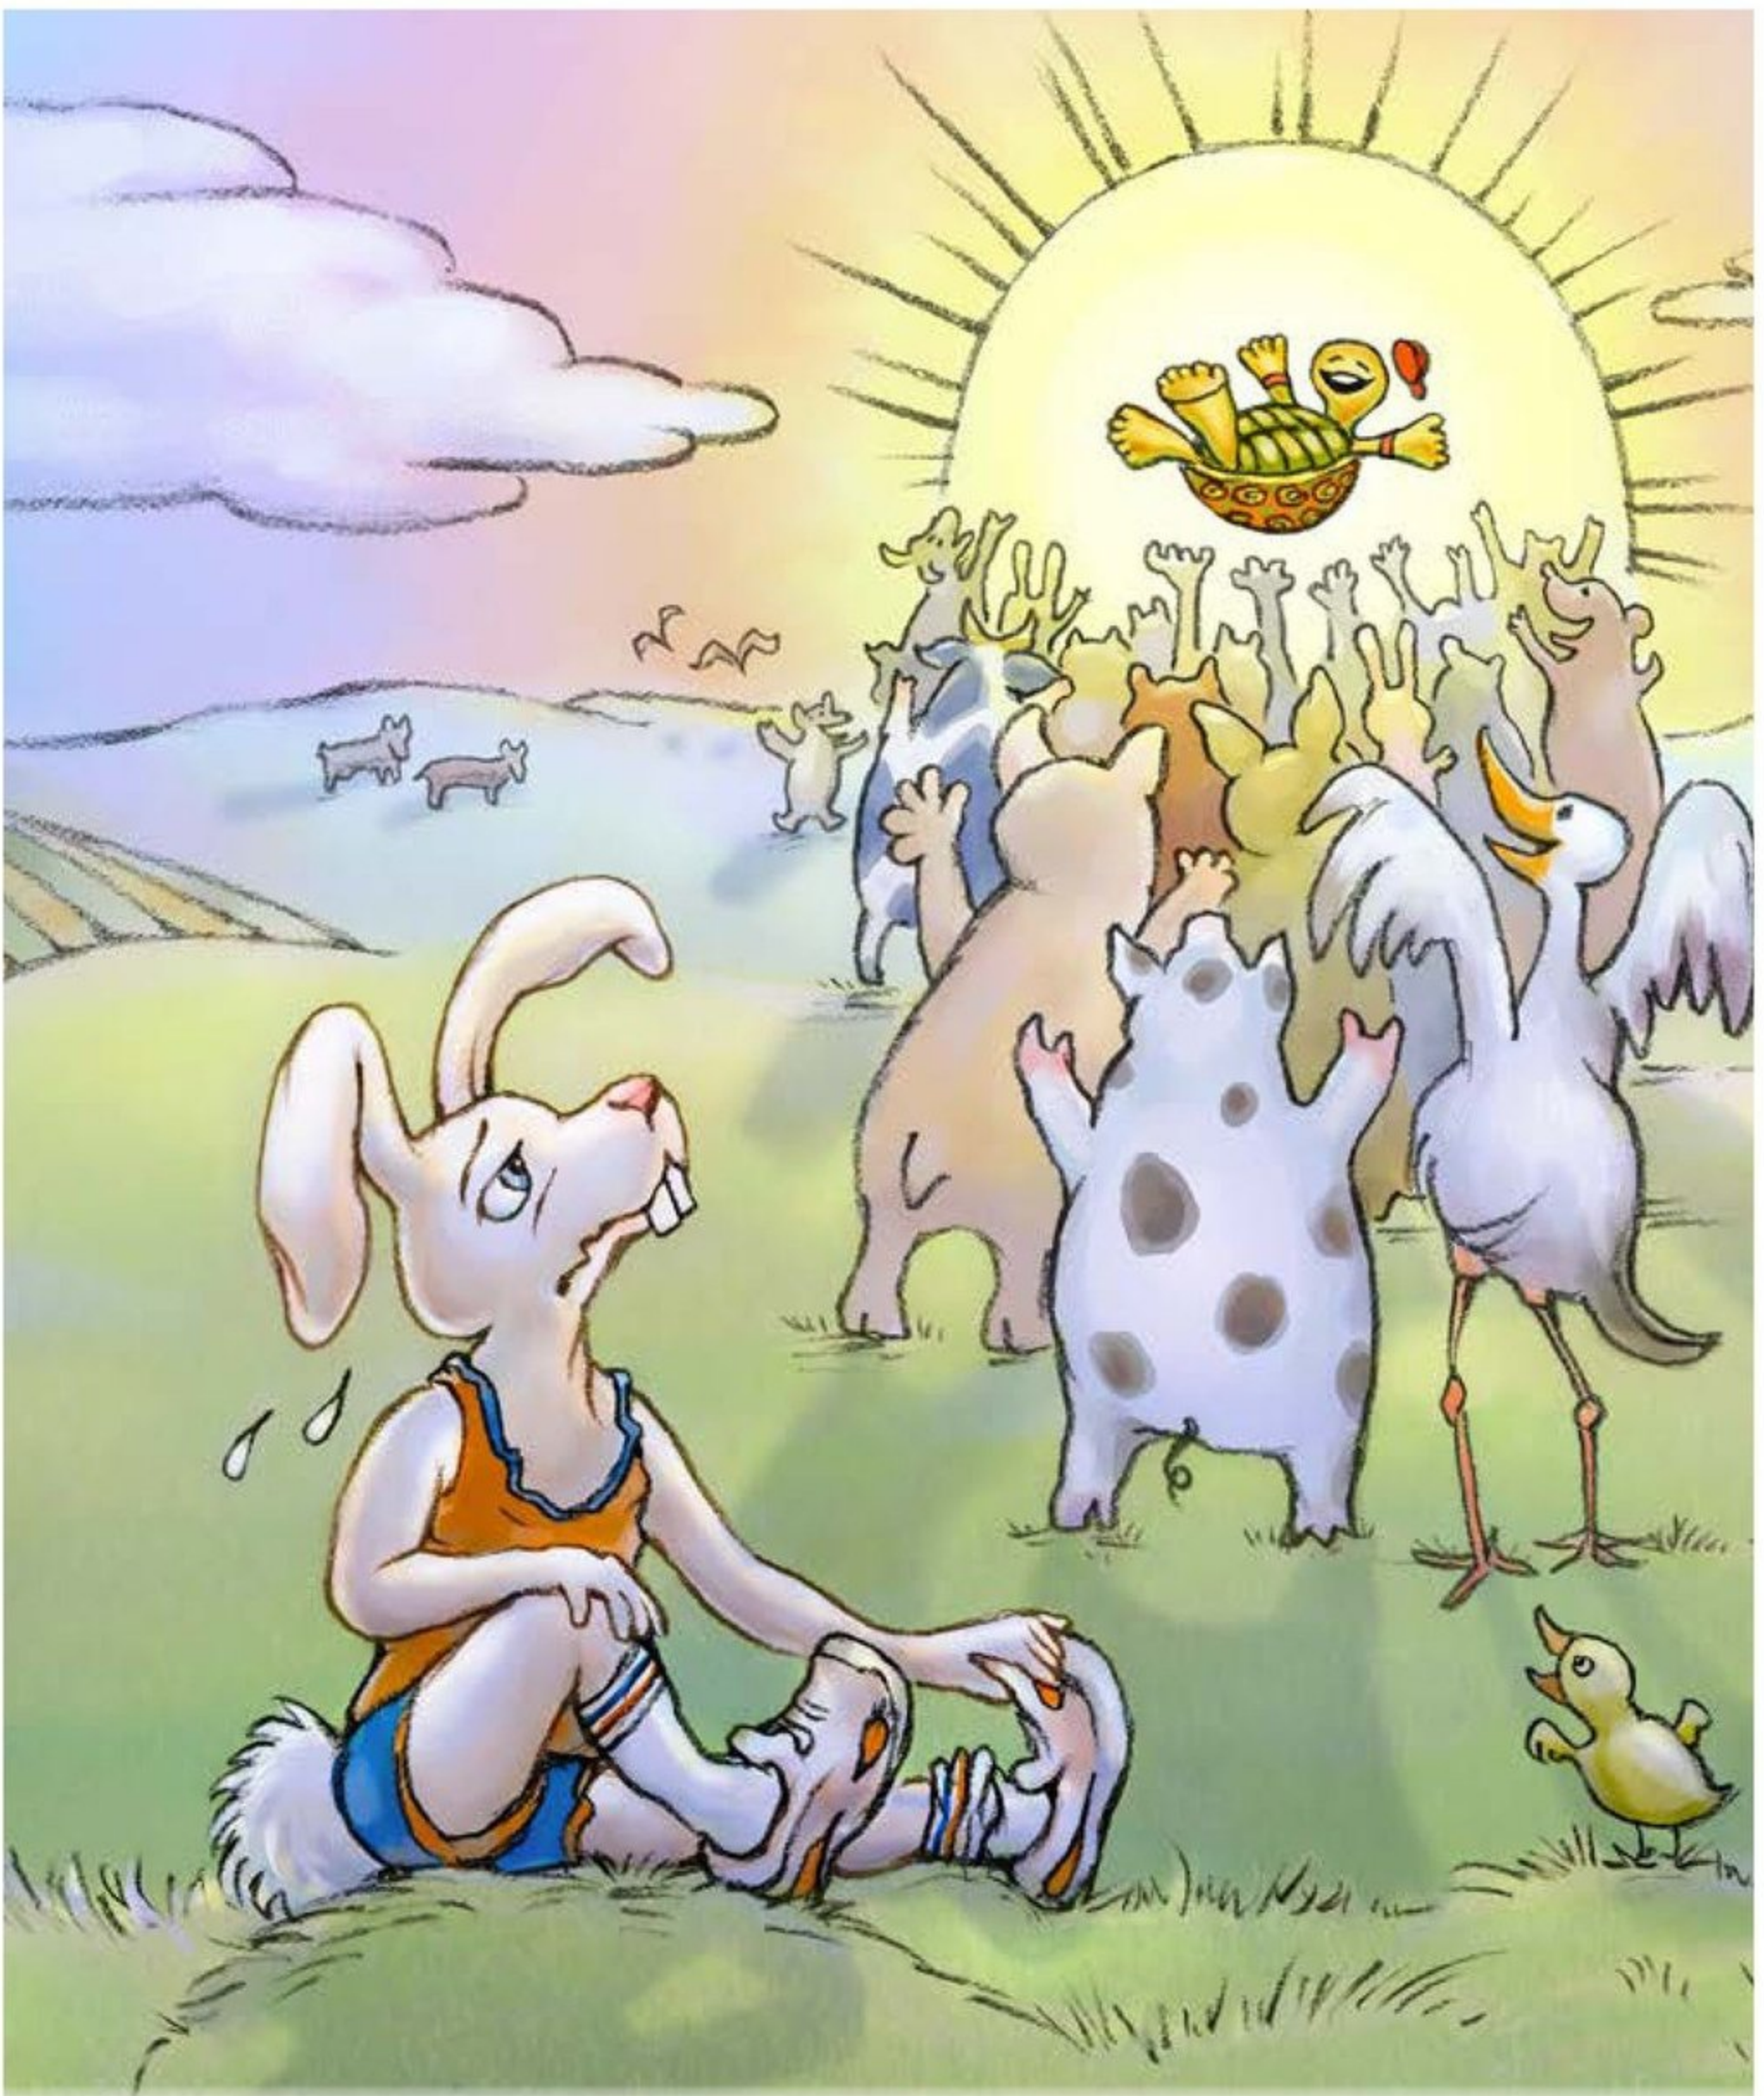

Hare wanted a nap.
He hopped under a tree and fell fast asleep.

Tortoise took one step
after another.
He passed Hare and kept going.

Hare woke from his nap.
He hopped to his feet and ran.
He could not run fast enough.

Tortoise won the race.
He smiled at Hare.
“Slow and steady wins
the race!” Tortoise said.
