With one loud crack of lightning, the house goes dark.

Mom brings flashlights.
“Let’s make shadow shapes,”
she says.

Mom makes a bunny rabbit
that wiggles its ears.

Mom makes a swan with feathers.

Mom makes a dog that howls
at the sky.

Mom makes a deer with big antlers.

Mom makes a slow-moving turtle.

Mom makes an elephant that swings its trunk.

I make a bird in flight.
Then the shadow shapes
are gone.

“Aw!” I say. “Who turned on the lights?”

Reader’s note: The art in this book was made from many pieces of paper cut into different shapes.
